

Georgetown College Pictures

This is the first thing you see when you enter the campus.

This building is the Asher Science Center and if you are majoring in anything with science this will be where you are at the majority of the time.

This is the Learning Center and this is where the library is and if you need help with a subject there are tutors to help you out.

Georgetown College Pictures

This is one of the dorms, it's called the President's House Association. People who are in the organization get to chose where to live in there first then upperclassmen get to live in there.

The Cralle Center has lots of different things inside, there's "The Caf", the student store to get school supplies, spirit wear, etc. also another place to study at and where all the sports locker rooms are in the basement of the building.

Georgetown College Pictures

Cooke Memorial is the building where you would go if you're majoring in Psychology.

John L. Hill Chapel is the church on campus.

This is the softball field, I practiced with the team and in the future I will be playing with them.

Georgetown College Pictures

This is the football field, I watched a game with the softball team and two other recruits.

This is the cafeteria in Georgetown or “The Caf.”