

My Tour Of Ohio State University

At Ohio University I visited the main campus, and when I got there, my first stop was visiting the Ohio Union which was the “living room” of the campus. Inside the hall I found the foyer which was very big. I also found a small living room with plenty of students. After walking quite a long walk, I found myself in front of Hale Hall which is an old building. On my walk after Hale Hall I found the university’s amphitheater named “Browning Amphitheater.” After looking at the amphitheater I was wondering if the university had anywhere to eat, and then I found it--the “Kennedy Commons” which was an all-you-can-eat buffet that the campus has. During my tour I was able to see the Wexner Medical center, the “Ohio Stadium”, “Derby Hall” and lastly, “Mirror Lake”.

I learned that the campus has a lot to offer any student. The university has a diverse selection of courses that you can choose from; it even seems overwhelming at times. Just going through the campus and learning everything I could was a challenge. If you have the smarts and are willing to give it your all, the university will be a great time for anybody!
