

On Job Training

You don't need much to be a car salesman. Attitude is the most important part of applying and becoming a car salesman. No college degree or education is necessary, either. Only ambition. One major thing about salespeople is they have to work long hours, so if you are single, it's easier. But even then you can make upwards of six figures. They also have many emotional and mental challenges everyday. Trying to sell cars can be quite draining but it can reap great rewards.

- Needs a good attitude
- No education needed
- Long hours
- 100k earnings possible
- Dealerships may provide a job description
- Many mental challenges
