

The Work of an Engineer

Civil Engineers help out with the world everywhere you go. They help create healthy habitats. Also, they help design roads, bridges, estates, and much more. On top of that, they help keep the water clean so it will be healthy for us to drink and bathe in. Civil Engineers help build things efficiently so if there is a hurricane the buildings can withstand it. They try to design things that are more energy efficient because saving the environment is very important. This career interest me because I've always loved to build and design things, while saving resources and helping out the community.
